A Shared History:

A Shared History Amy J. Lueck, 2020-01-06 In the nineteenth century advanced educational opportunities were not clearly demarcated and defined Author Amy J Lueck demonstrates that public high schools in addition to colleges and universities were vital settings for advanced rhetoric and writing instruction Lueck shows how the history of high schools in Louisville Kentucky connects with contradicts and complicates the accepted history of writing instruction and underscores the significance of high schools to rhetoric and composition history and the reform efforts in higher education today Lueck explores Civil War and Reconstruction era challenges to the University of Louisville and nearby local high schools their curricular transformations and their fate in regard to national education reform efforts These institutions reflect many of the educational trends and developments of the day college and university building the emergence of English education as the dominant curriculum for higher learning student centered pedagogies and educational theories the development and transformation of normal schools the introduction of manual education and its mutation into vocational education and the extension of advanced education to women African American and working class students Lueck demonstrates a complex genealogy of interconnections among high schools colleges and universities that demands we rethink our categories and standards of assessment and our field's history A shift in our historical narrative would promote a move away from an emphasis on the preparation transition and movement of student writers from high school to college or university and instead allow a greater focus on the fostering of rich rhetorical practices and pedagogies at all educational levels As the definition of college level writing becomes increasingly contested once again Lueck invites a reassessment of the discipline's understanding of contemporary programs based in high schools like dual credit and concurrent enrollment

E. B. Du Bois Harold Bloom,2009 Presents a collection of critical essays on the works and ideas of W E B Du Bois The Power of Neo-Slave Fiction and Public History Grant Rodwell,2023-10-13 Professional historians schools colleges and universities are not alone in shaping higher order understanding of history The central thesis of this book is the belief historical fiction in text and film shape attitudes towards an understanding of history as it moves the focus from slavery to the enslaved from the institution to the personal families and feminist accounts In a broader sense this contributes to a public history In part using the quickly growing corpus of neo slave counterfactual narratives this book examines the notion of the emerging slavery public history and the extent to which this is defined by literature film and other forms of artistic expression rather than non fiction popular or scholarly and education in history in the school systems Inter alia this book looks to the validity of historical fiction in print or in film as a way of understanding history A focal point of this book is the hypothesis that neo slave narratives supported by selective triangulated readings and viewings of scholarly works and non fiction have assisted greatly in re shaping the historiography of antebellum slavery and scholarly historians followed in the wake of these developments Essentially this has meant a re shaping of the historiography with a focus from slavery to that of the enslaved Moreover it has opened new vistas for a public history devoid of top down authoritative scholarship An important and provocative read for students and scholars interested in understanding the history of slavery its harrowing effects and how it was culturally defined THE PERTINENCE OF HISTORY AMENA MUHAMMED ALI,2023-04-29 History is often viewed as a dry and dusty subject a collection of names dates and facts that seem far removed from our daily lives Yet as we will see in the pages that follow the study of history is essential for understanding the world around us and our place in it This book is an attempt to demonstrate the significance of history in interpreting our present world and to explore the many ways in which the past continues to shape our society today The Sacred Routes of Uyghur History Rian Thum,2014-10-13 For 250 years the Turkic Muslims of Altishahr who now call themselves Uyghurs have cultivated a sense of history and identity that challenges Beijing s national narrative The roots of this history run deeper than recent conflicts Rian Thum says to a time when manuscripts and pilgrimage along the Silk Road dominated understandings of the past

Language and the Construction of Multiple Identities in the Nigerian Novel Romanus Aboh, 2018-12-28. Language and the construction of multiple identities in the Nigerian novel examines the multifaceted relation between people and the various identities they construct for themselves and for others through the context specific ways they use language. Specifically this book pays attention to how forms of identities ethnic cultural national and gender are constructed through the use of language in select novels of Adichie, Atta and Beti. Employing an interdisciplinary approach this book draws analytical insights from critical discourse analysis, literary discourse analysis and socio-ethno-linguistic analysis. This approach enables the author to engage with the novels to illuminate the link between the ways Nigerians use language and the identities they construct. Being a context driven analysis this book critically scrutinises literary language beyond stylistic borders by interrogating the micro and macro levels of language use as a core analytical paradigm frequently used by discourse analysts who engage in critical discourse analysis.

The Use of History in Putin's Russia James C. Pearce, 2020-10-06. History is not just a study of past events but a product and an idea for the modernisation and consolidation of the nation. The Use of History in Putin's Russia examines how the past is perceived in contemporary Russia and analyses the ways in which the Russian state uses history to create a broad coalition of consensus and forge a new national identity. Central to issues of governance and national identity the Russian state utilises history for the purpose of state building and reviving Russia's national consciousness in the twenty first century. Assessing how history mediates the complex relationship between state and population this book analyses the selection process of constructing and recycling a preferred historical narrative to create loyal patriotic citizens ultimately aiding its modernisation. Different historical spheres of Russian life are analysed in depth including areas of culture, politics, education and anniversaries. The past is not just a state matter a socio-political issue linked to the modernisation process containing many paradoxes. This book has wide ranging appeal not only for professors and students specialising in Russia and the former Soviet Space in the fields of History and Memory, International Relations, Educational Studies and Intercultural Communication but also for policymakers and think tanks.
