In Common Things Matthew Rowney, 2022-03-01 The hardness of stone the pliancy of wood the fluidity of palm oil the crystalline nature of salt and the vegetable qualities of moss each describes a way of being in and understanding the world. These substances are both natural objects hailed in Romantic literature and global commodities within a system of extraction and exchange that has driven climate change representing the paradox of the modern relation to materiality. In Common Things examines these five common substances stone wood oil salt and moss in the literature of Romantic period authors excavating their cultural ecological and commodity histories. The book argues that the substances and their histories have shaped cultural consciousness and that Romantic era texts formally encode this shaping. Matthew Rowney draws together processes beings and things both from the Romantic period and from our current ecological moment to re-invoke a lost heritage of cultural relations with common substances. Enabling a fresh reading of Romantic literature In Common Things prompts a reevaluation of the simple the everyday and the common in light of their contributions to our contemporary sense of ourselves and our societies.
