

A photograph of an elderly Japanese basketmaker, likely a man, with white hair and a focused expression, working on a large, shallow basket. He is wearing a dark, textured jacket. His hands are actively weaving green bamboo strips into a circular frame. The basket's structure is visible, showing a radial pattern of spokes. In the background, a wooden structure and a long, thin bamboo strip are visible, suggesting a traditional workshop setting. The text "A Basketmaker in Rural Japan" is overlaid on the upper right portion of the image.

The Postwar Developments of Japanese Studies in the United States Helen Hardacre, 1998 This volume of twelve essays with useful bibliographies in the fields of history art religion literature anthropology political science and law documents the history of United States scholarship on Japan since 1945

Japanese Tea Culture Morgan Pitelka, 2013-10-16 From its origins as a distinct set of ritualised practices in the sixteenth century to its international expansion in the twentieth tea culture has had a major impact on artistic production connoisseurship etiquette food design and more recently on notions of Japaneseness The authors dispel the myths around the development of tea practice dispute the fiction of the dominance of aesthetics over politics in tea and demonstrate that writing history has always been an integral part of tea culture

The Postwar Development of Japanese Studies in the United States Helen Hardacre, 2023-07-17 The present volume documents the postwar history of United States scholarship on Japan A careful selection of North American scholars under the general editorship of Helen Hardacre Reischauer Institute Professor of Japanese Religions and Society at Harvard University shows that a range of factors have directed Japanese studies in the United States since 1945. Among these factors are social and political change in Japan and the United States, shifts in dominant scholarly concerns about Japan, and changing evaluations of area studies. The work consists of twelve essays in a wide variety of fields: history, art, religion, literature, anthropology, political science, and law. Each essay chronicles postwar scholarship in its particular discipline and provides a useful bibliography to serve further reference. The general aim of the volume is to put current debates in historical perspective and to help assess the field's achievements. It identifies areas requiring more work and charts directions for the future.

Japan's Hidden Face Toshihiko Abe, Jeanne Rejaunier, 1998

Written by the former director of European and American operations for Casio Computer Ltd, this major new work calls for revolutionary changes in Japanese society, including the diminished role of the emperor and the establishment of an American style business management system. Illustrations.
