

TYPES OF ATTENTION

SUSTAINED ATTENTION

Holding and maintaining attention over a period of time, necessary for the focus and concentration needed in learning, listening, and paying attention during conversations or instructions.

SELECTIVE ATTENTION

Paying attention to specific input by the brain's ability to select the input we pay attention to. Consciously, and unconsciously, we are able to select the input which is most important.

ALTERNATING ATTENTION

The ability to switch or immediately transfer focus from one activity to another. Switching points of concentration is needed to make sudden switches in alternating attention in tasks which require different cognitive skills.

DIVIDED ATTENTION

One's ability to focus on two or more things at the same time. Simultaneously concentrating on various factors is evidenced by driving and holding a conversation simultaneously.
