George Michael Speers

Artherogenesis And Aging:

Atherogenesis and Aging Sandra R. Bates, Edwin C. Gangloff, 2012-12-06 Age is a nonreversible risk factor for atherosclerosis The atherosclerotic process begins early in life progresses during the middle years and usually culminates in clinical disease towards the later years of the life span Since atherosclerosis is a multifactorial disease and many of the risk factors are time and age related it has been difficult to sort out intrinsic aging from environmental factors that operate over many years Furthermore the role of genetic factors remains unknown This workshop has produced much worthwhile information that is helping elucidate the impact of age on atherogenesis Important strides have been made in understanding the role of changes in the arterial wall and of lipoproteins platelets and monocyte derived macrophages in the disease process In parallel our understanding of the biology of aging has increased sufficiently so that these two areas of interest can now profitably intersect The proceedings of this successful workshop emphasize that there is much to be gained by continued interaction between those scientists interested in the biology of aging at all levels and those interested in the atherosclerotic process Hopefully we may eventually progress in our understanding and reach the stage when atherosclerosis will no longer be an inexorable concomitant of human aging Edwin L Bierman M D Contents Foreword V Contributors IX Participants in the Workshop XV Introduction and Statement of Research Recommendations Sandra R The Role of Aging in

Atherosclerosis R.E. Tracy, 2013-03-09 The cover of this book summarizes the central features of the sequestration hypothesis Commonplace appearances seen in human coronary artery fat stained in paraffin sections by a new technique explained in Chapter Eleven are arranged to suggest pathways of evolution toward atheroma The hypothesis formulated and defended in the pages of this book is this Fibroplasia progresses upward in column a from 1a to 3a as a characteristic feature of aging This starts sooner and progresses faster in men than in women Numbers of SMCs remain essentially constant so that fibroplasia per SMC steadily increases The rise upward conveys an increasing propensity to sequester atherogenic lipids causing transition rightward into column b Sequestered extracellular lipid then attracts fatty streak elements especially foam cells and lymphocytes to propel the arterial site rightward into column c Frame 1c corresponds to the AHA Lesions Committee classification type IIb the progression resistant fatty streak arising directly without prior lipid sequestration this can progress to atheroma but slowly after much delay although extreme provocation can accelerate the process Such progression is rightward toward atheroma with thin cap not upward toward fibroplastic thickening Frame 2c corresponds to the AHA classification type Ha progression prone fatty streaks These readily evolve into atheroma again by horizontal progression Handbook of Models for Human Aging P. Michael Conn, 2011-04-28 The Handbook of Models for Human Aging is designed as the only comprehensive work available that covers the diversity of aging models currently available For each animal model it presents key aspects of biology nutrition factors affecting life span methods of age determination use in research and disadvantages advantages of use Chapters on comparative models take a broad sweep of age related diseases from Alzheimer's to joint disease, cataracts, cancer, and obesity. In addition, there is an historical overview and discussion of model availability, key methods, and ethical issues. Utilizes a multidisciplinary approach. Shows tricks and approaches not available in primary publications. First volume of its kind to combine both methods of study for human aging and animal models. Over 200 illustrations.

Free Radicals and Aging Ingrid Emerit, Chance, 2013-03-13 Among the various theories proposed to account for the process of aging, the free radical theory is of practical interest since it includes the possibility of retarding this process by administering natural or synthetic antioxidants and free radical scavengers. The book Free Radicals and Aging summarizes knowledge accumulated during recent years in 42 reviews written by experts in the field. Aspects of free radical involvement in the intrinsic aging process and in age-related diseases, as well as the importance of the pro-antioxidant balance throughout life, are discussed. Epidemiological studies from several European countries are reported showing correlations between low plasma levels of essential antioxidants and the occurrence of coronary heart disease, cancer, and cataract formation. Appropriate nutrition, as well as prophylactic and therapeutic use of antioxidants, are considered. This book represents a milestone in the field of age-related free radical biology and medicine. With contributions by A. Azzi, B. Chance, R. G. Cutler, H. Esterbauer, P. H. Evans, F. Gey, C. Guarneri, D. Harman, N. I. Krinsky, M. Meydani, J. Miquel, A. Mori, L. Packer, C. Rice, Evans, M. Arterial Aging and Age-Associated Arterial Diseases Mingyi Wang, Jiguang Wang, Gianfranco Pintus, Cuntai Zhang, 2019-01-24 The underlying mechanisms behind aging have long been a great scientific mystery that the biomedical research community has long studied. In developed nations, as the population grows older, increases in life expectancy are increasingly limited by our relatively poor control of chronic aging-associated diseases such as arterial aging. Among age-related conditions that negatively influence longevity, growing evidence demonstrates that arterial aging is fundamentally caused by a proinflammatory process that begins at birth and results in detrimental effects that affect every organ system. Vascular aging is the leading risk factor for quintessential cardiovascular diseases such as hypertension and atherosclerosis. With aging, vascular walls develop a proinflammatory and stressed microenvironment characterized by both an upregulation of proinflammatory chemokines and cytokines, as well as a downregulation of anti-inflammatory counterparts. This chronic imbalance in inflammatory regulatory networks is the key driver of changes at the cellular and molecular level that result in hypertensive and atherosclerotic arteries. Thus, an intervention of proinflammation may be a viable therapeutic intervention to reduce morbidity and mortality from cardiovascular diseases. In this eBook, we aim to supply an updated overview of the physiological and biochemical mechanisms that affect inflammation and vascular aging. We believe that this eBook will contribute to the understanding of the pathogenesis of many chronic or age-related diseases, as well as to their treatment with both current and new therapeutic approaches.

Aging and the Heart José Marín-García, 2007-12-07 In this book, the genetic and molecular basis of cardiovascular aging is examined in detail, and a comprehensive assessment is given of the bioenergetics changes occurring in human and animal models of cardiac aging. Both current diagnostic and future therapeutic modalities are presented giving this book a dual pronged approach Cardiac aging like aging in general is a complex process involving numerous cellular and molecular changes This book sheds new light on the phenomenon Aging Michael Fossel,2024-02-29 Aging How Aging Works How We Reverse Aging and Prospects for Curing Aging Diseases explains the process of aging beyond mere entropy exposing it as a complicated and dynamic process that undercuts maintenance and permits age related disease With a deeper understanding of the aging process intervention becomes both easy to understand and clinically feasible With a solid academic approach this proposed book builds upon the substantial work published over the past 20 years citing the newest data up to date models based upon that data and the implications for improved clinical intervention including recent developments in gene and cell therapy Coverage of age related diseases includes neurodegenerative cardiovascular bone and joint immune system renal pulmonary and skin aging Future directions of the field focus on interventions including a summary of previous attempts to intervene in aging and age related disease the status of current research and proposed biotech interventions as well as their potential obstacles risks and benefits This is the perfect reference for scientists clinicians and researchers interested in the translational research opportunities such as drug discovery pharmacogenetics and experimental therapeutics not only summarizing where the field stands but giving a clear and cogent view of where clinical medicine is going in the next decade Provides a sophisticated accurate and clear explanation of aging Gives a clear explanation of the fundamental role of cell aging in age related disease Offers a unified model for the role of epigenetic and telomere changes in cell aging Outlines effective approaches to intervention in the fundamental aging process Introduces upcoming interventions intended to both cure and prevent age related diseases
