Translated by Thomas McQuillan. Architecture is a manifestation of the environment in which it is placed, observes distinguished architect and theoretician Christian Norberg-Schulz. A simple enough observation, but one that becomes subtle and nuanced in this landmark book which attempts to define for the first time what Nordic building really is. Norberg Schulz begins by contrasting the natural world of the North with that of the Mediterranean: the Nordic unendingness against the sun saturated and homogeneous South. Using themes such as natural domestic universal and foreign, he finds the architecture of both regions sensibly related to their environments, but whereas the South lends itself to abstraction, the North is marked by variation, openness and dynamism by low light, forests and space. Exploring the ways built experience takes place, Norberg Schulz charts the distinctive character of land and climate that distinguishes Denmark's, Sweden's, Finland's and Norway's architectural traditions from each other and from those to the South. While each of these countries might be said to share regional traits, Norberg Schulz identifies differences: the cultivated and closely detailed landscape and architecture of Denmark; the dramatic structured forms of Norway that allow him to account for the way individual Nordic architectures evolved.
