Balkans 2010 Edward C. Meyer, William L. Nash, Council on Foreign Relations, 2002 During the 1990s nowhere was the virus of militant ethnic nationalism more deadly than in the Balkans America and its allies ultimately played an indispensable role stopping atrocities and creating conditions for sustainable peace now after a decade of extensive involvement the international community is looking to wind down its commitment in the region The Center for Preventive Action a conflict prevention initiative of the Council on Foreign Relations formed this Independent Task Force to develop tangible and practical recommendations to put the Balkan states irreversibly on the path toward integration with Europe and to allow the international community to reduce its presence in an orderly fashion by 2010 The Task Force's key recommendations include first the European Union taking the lead on the Balkans but with American leadership and partnership to ensure that U S interests particularly in the areas of military reform and the combating of organized politico criminal syndicates that undermine regional and even global security are safeguarded second shifting the priorities of international and local actors toward the standards of the European Union and NATO accession plans and using conditionality carrots and sticks by the international community to achieve its priorities third increasing investment and trade in the Balkans through banking sector reform privatization of state or publicly owned corporations private sector development and legislative and judicial action on property rights The Task Force included senior experts on the Balkans and U S foreign policy from a cross section of think tanks government the military international organizations academia and the business community Book jacket Balkans 2010: Report of an Independent Task Force Sponsored by the Council on Foreign Relations Center for Preventive Action Edward C. Orr, 2004-07-20 Events in Iraq Afghanistan and the Balkans have proved that failed and defeated states threaten the national security interests of the United States and the stability of entire regions But success in addressing these threats clearly depends on more than military might the post conflict period is equally crucial Case studies in this book examine the U S approach in Kosovo East Timor Sierra Leone Afghanistan and Iraq The book offers policy guidance on how to handle current reconstruction challenges and on building capacity to do a better job when America is inevitably called on to restore failed nations in the future The International Community and Statebuilding Patrice McMahon, Jon Western, 2012-02-07 This book brings together policymakers and academics to analyse the international community's performance in post war statebuilding projects In the past twenty years statebuilding has emerged as a centerpiece of international efforts to stabilize violent conflicts From the Balkans to Iraq to Afghanistan it has become widely accepted that statebuilding defined as the development of transparent and accountable political institutions stable and sustainable economic structures professional public administrations and civilian controlled security services is essential to the long term stability of post conflict settlements The International Community and Statebuilding brings together senior level policymakers and academics in order to analyse the international community's performance in post war statebuilding projects Filling an important gap in the existing body of work on this topic the contributors explore how international state builders have attempted to negotiate the intersections of multilateralism competing strategic priorities and agendas organizational complexity and domestic politics This book will be of much interest to students of statebuilding peacebuilding war and conflict studies and International
