Boy Genius And The Mogul The Untold Story Of Television:

The Boy Genius and the Mogul Daniel Stashower, 2002-05-07 The world remembers Edison Ford and the Wright Brothers But what about Philo T Farnsworth the inventor of television an innovation that did as much as any other to shape the twentieth century That question lies at the heart of The Boy Genius and the Mogul Daniel Stashower's captivating chronicle of television's true inventor the battle he faced to capitalize on his breakthrough and the powerful forces that resulted in the collapse of his dreams The son of a Mormon farmer Farnsworth was born in 1906 in a single room log cabin on an isolated homestead in Utah The Farnsworth family farm had no radio no telephone and no electricity Yet motivated by the stories of scientists and inventors he read about in the science magazines of the day young Philo set his sights on becoming an inventor By his early teens Farnsworth had become an inveterate tinkerer able to repair broken farm equipment when no one else could It was inevitable that when he read an article about a new idea for the transmission of pictures by radio waves that he would want to attempt it himself One day while he was walking through a hay field Farnsworth took note of the straight parallel lines of the furrows and envisioned a system of scanning a visual image line by line and transmitting it to a remote screen He soon sketched a diagram for an early television camera tube It was 1921 and Farnsworth was only fourteen years old Farnsworth went on to college to pursue his studies of electrical engineering but was forced to quit after two years due to the death of his father Even so he soon managed to persuade a group of California investors to set him up in his own research lab where in 1927 he produced the first all electronic television image and later patented his invention While Farnsworth's invention was a landmark it was also the beginning of a struggle against an immense corporate power that would consume much of his life That corporate power was embodied by a legendary media mogul RCA President and NBC founder David Sarnoff who claimed that his chief scientist had invented a mechanism for television prior to Farnsworth's Thus the boy genius and the mogul were locked in a confrontation over who would control the future of television technology and the vast fortune it represented Farnsworth was enormously outmatched by the media baron and his army of lawyers and public relations people and by the 1940s Farnsworth would be virtually forgotten as television's actual inventor while Sarnoff and his chief scientist would receive the credit Restoring Farnsworth to his rightful place in history The Boy Genius and the Mogul presents a vivid portrait of a self taught scientist whose brilliance allowed him to capture light in a bottle A rich and dramatic story of one man's perseverance and the remarkable events leading up to the launch of television as we know it The Boy Genius and the Mogul shines new light on a major turning point in American history Sage on the Screen Bill Ferster, 2016-11-15 A critical look at the success of film video television and the Internet in education Since the days of Thomas Edison technology has held the promise of lowering the cost of education The fantasy of leveraging a fixed production cost to reach an unlimited number of consumers is an enticing economic proposition one that has been repeatedly attempted with each new media format from radio and television to MOOCs where star academics make online video lectures available to millions of students at little cost In Sage on the Screen Bill Ferster explores the historical theoretical and practical perspectives of using broadcast media to teach by examining a century of efforts to use it at home and in the classroom Along the way he shares stories from teachers administrators entrepreneurs and innovators who promoted the use of cutting edge technology while critically evaluating their motives for doing so Taking a close look at the origins of various media forms their interrelatedness and their impact on education thus far Ferster asks why broadcast media has been so much more successful at entertaining people than it has been at educating them Accessibly written and full of explanatory art Sage on the Screen offers fresh insight into the current and future uses of instructional technology from K12 through non institutionally based learning

The Columbia History of American Television Gary Richard Edgerton, 2007 Richly researched and engaging The Columbia History of American Television tracks the growth of TV into a convergent technology a global industry a social catalyst a viable art form and a complex and dynamic reflection of the American mind and character Renowned media historian Gary R Edgerton follows the technological progress and increasing cultural relevance of television from its prehistory before 1947 to the Network Era 1948 1975 and the Cable Era 1976 1994 He considers the remodeling of television s look and purpose during World War II the gender racial and ethnic components of its early broadcasts and audiences its transformation of postwar America and its function in the political life of the country In conclusion Edgerton takes a discerning look at our current Digital Era and the new forms of instantaneous communication that continue to change America s social political and economic landscape

Beyond 3D TV Tony Sperry, Group Genius Keith Sawyer, 2008-03-04 A fascinating account of human experience at its best Mih ly Cs kszentmih lyi author of Flow Creativity has long been thought to be an individual gift best pursued alone schools organizations and whole industries are built on this idea But what if the most common beliefs about how creativity works are wrong Group Genius tears down some of the most popular myths about creativity revealing that creativity is always collaborative even when you re alone Sharing the results of his own acclaimed research on jazz groups theater ensembles and conversation analysis Keith Sawyer shows us how to be more creative in collaborative group settings how to change organizational dynamics for the better and how to tap into our own reserves of creativity

The Origins of Television News in America Mike Conway, 2009 This is the first in depth look at the development of the television newscast the most popular source of news for over forty five years During the 1940s most journalists ignored or dismissed television leaving the challenge to a small group of people working above New York City s Grand Central Terminal Without the pressures of ratings sponsors company oversight or many viewers the group refused to recreate newspapers radio or newsreels on the new medium They experimented argued tested and eventually settled on a format to exploit television s strengths This book documents that process challenging common myths including the importance of a popular anchor and television s inability to communicate non visual stories and crediting those whose work was critical in the formation of television as a news format and illustrating the pressures and professional roadblocks facing those who dare question journalistic traditions of any era Publisher Here is where Andrew Carroll, 2013 A fifty state tour of lesser known historical sites based on a campaign backed by National Geographic reveals the events that took place at near forgotten locales
