Architectural Illustrations Part Iii:

Westminster Part II: The Art, Architecture and Archaeology of the Royal Palace Warwick Rodwell, Tim Tatton-Brown, 2020-04-27 Westminster came into existence in the later Anglo Saxon period and by the mid 11th century when Edward the Confessor's great new abbey was built it was a major royal centre two miles south west of the City of London. Within a century or so it had become the principal seat of government in England and this series of twenty eight papers covers new research on the topography buildings art history architecture and archaeology of Westminster's two great establishments Abbey and Palace. Part I begins with studies of the topography of the area an account of its Roman period finds and an historiographical overview of the archaeology of the Abbey. Edward the Confessor's enigmatic church plan is discussed and the evidence for later Romanesque structures is assembled for the first time. Five papers examine aspects of Henry III's vast new Abbey church and its decoration. A further four cover aspects of the later medieval period coronation and Sir George Gilbert Scott's impact as the Abbey's greatest Surveyor of the Fabric. A pair of papers examines the development of the northern precinct of the Abbey around St Margaret's Church and the remarkable buildings of Westminster School created within the remains of the monastery in the 17th and 18th centuries. Part II part deals with the Palace of Westminster and its wider topography between the late 11th century and the devastating fire of 1834 that largely destroyed the medieval palace. William Rufus's enormous hall and its famous roofs are completely reassessed and comparisons discussed between this structure and the great hall at Caen. Other essays reconsider Henry III's palace St Stephen's chapel the king's great chamber the Painted Chamber and the enigmatic Jewel Tower. The final papers examine the meeting places of Parliament and the living accommodation of the MPs who attended it the topography of the Palace between the Reformation and the fire of 1834 and the building of the New Palace which is better known today as the Houses of Parliament.

Outlines of Russian Culture, Part 3 Paul Miliukov, 2016-11-11 This translation makes available to English readers the only comprehensive and thorough history of Russian culture in any language. Endowed with scholarly authority it traces in broad outline the long rich story of the development of religion literature and the arts from their earliest manifestations to modern times. The contrast of Christianity in Russia with the Western Church the retarded development and then suddenly blooming of literature in the 19th century the individuality of Russian genius in architecture painting and music are described and evaluated the whole forming a penetrating insight into Russian backgrounds and character. For the convenience of those only interested in separate sections the book is issued in three parts as standalone volumes. Part I Religion and the Church. Part II Literature. Part III Architecture Painting and Music.
