Introduction to Town Planning in Ancient Egypt David

Rowe Campbell,2020-07 Our knowledge of Egyptian urbanism and city design is only patchy despite some rapid improvements of the past few years This sketchy picture is seemingly due to two factors namely that the Egyptians themselves seem to have something of a disinterest in the topic and the modern archaeologist and researcher have had a distinct preoccupation with the monumental and funereal aspects of ancient Egypt As a result there are many gaps in our knowledge and understanding of the development the variety layout and vernacular structure of the Egyptian City Our knowledge of Egypt planning as a practice is almost non-existent Despite this however new research and is constantly on going as more information is extracted from the sands of north east Africa and our existing knowledge is examined in the light of a ever widening range of viewpoints and the changes from new discoveries may revolutionize what we do know This short book will examine the resources that are available to an exploration of the Egyptian city These resources include some of the limited archaeological remains that that have been examined the limited written and pictorial records left us by both Egyptian and foreign authors and a number of scribal remains from which we can infer information These include building tools used on Egyptian construction sites These will be supplemented with an examination of some anthropological sources including the arrangements of funeral precincts and the cultural arrangement of some nearby and related cultures
