Autobiography of an Archive Nicholas B. Dirks, 2015-02-10 The decades between 1970 and the end of the twentieth century saw the disciplines of history and anthropology draw closer together with historians paying more attention to social and cultural factors and the significance of everyday experience in the study of the past The people rather than elite actors became the focus of their inquiry and anthropological insights into agriculture kinship ritual and folk customs enabled historians to develop richer and more representative narratives The intersection of these two disciplines also helped scholars reframe the legacies of empire and the roots of colonial knowledge In this collection of essays and lectures history's turn from high politics and formal intellectual history toward ordinary lives and cultural rhythms is vividly reflected in a scholar's intellectual journey to India Nicholas B Dirks recounts his early study of kingship in India the rise of the caste system the emergence of English imperial interest in controlling markets and India's political regimes and the development of a crisis in sovereignty that led to an extraordinary nationalist struggle He shares his personal encounters with archives that provided the sources and boundaries for research on these subjects ultimately revealing the limits of colonial knowledge and single disciplinary perspectives Drawing parallels to the way American universities balance the liberal arts and specialized research today Dirks who has occupied senior administrative positions and now leads the University of California at Berkeley encourages scholars to continue to apply multiple approaches to their research and build a more global and ethical archive

Archives, Documentation, and Institutions of Social Memory Francis Xavier Blouin, William G. Rosenberg, 2007-08-02 Essays exploring the importance of archives as artifacts of culture National Archives of India, 1948-1952 National Archives of India, 1954

Archiving the British Raj Sabyasachi Bhattacharya, 2018-10-18 The archives are generally sites where historians conduct research into our past Seldom are they objects of research Sabyasachi Bhattacharya traces the path that led to the creation of a central archive in India from the setting up of the Imperial Record

Department the precursor of the National Archives of India and the Indian Historical Records Commission to the framing of archival policies and the change in those policies over the years In the last two decades of colonial rule in India there were anticipations of freedom in many areas of the public sphere These were felt in the domain of archiving as well chiefly in the form of reversal of earlier policies From this perspective Bhattacharya explores the relation between knowledge and power and discusses how the World Wars and the decline of Britain among other factors effected a transition from a Eurocentric and disparaging approach to India towards a more liberal and less ethnocentric one

Property and the Law in Energy and Natural Resources Aileen McHarg, 2010 The law of energy and natural resources has always had a strong focus on property as one of its components but there are relatively few comparative book length treatments of both property law and energy and natural resources law The aim of this edited collection is to explore the multiple dimensions of the contemporary relationship between property and energy and natural resources law Its genesis was the growing resurgence of global interest in questions of property in energy and resources and how it manifests itself across legal regimes around the world With an international and comparative character the collection seeks to capture differences in the meaning of property and the different views about the role it should play in a diverse range of contexts civil law and common law the law of indigenous communities public law and private law and national and international law Key issues discussed include private rights and common property situations privatization and regulation competition for land use and resources the role of property rights in environmental protection and the balance between national sovereignty and the security of foreign investment The collection thus has relevance for a wide readership interested in the legal dimensions of property as an increasingly important aspect of the law for energy and resources across diverse countries and at the international level The contributors are established experts in the energy and natural resources law field and the collection builds upon a body of previous collaborative work in this area

The Origins of Modern Historiography in India R. Mantena, 2012-02-14 This book uncovers practices surrounding acts of collecting surveying and antiquarianism during British colonial rule in India By examining these practices this book traces the colonial conditions of the production of sources the forging of a new historical method and the ascendance of positivist historiography in nineteenth century India

Colonial Relations Adele Perry, 2015-04-02 A new perspective on the nineteenth century imperial world through one family s history across North America the Caribbean and United Kingdom Revealing how these figures demonstrate complicated historical trajectories of empire and nation Adele Perry illustrates how gender intimacy and family were key to making and remaking imperial politics
