Automated Mathematical Induction:

Automated Mathematical Induction Hantao Zhang, 2012-12-06 It has been shown how the common structure that defines a family of proofs can be expressed as a proof plan 5 This common structure can be exploited in the search for particular proofs A proof plan has two complementary components a proof method and a proof tactic By prescribing the structure of a proof at the level of primitive inferences a tactic 11 provides the guarantee part of the proof In contrast a method provides a more declarative explanation of the proof by means of preconditions Each method has associated effects The execution of the effects simulates the application of the corresponding tactic Theorem proving in the proof planning framework is a two phase process 1 Tactic construction is by a process of method composition Given a goal an applicable method is selected The applicability of a method is determined by evaluating the method's preconditions The method effects are then used to calculate subgoals This process is applied recursively until no more subgoals remain Because of the one to one correspondence between methods and tactics the output from this process is a composite tactic tailored to the given goal 2 Tactic execution generates a proof in the object level logic Note that no search is involved in the execution of the tactic All the search is taken care of during the planning process The real benefits of having separate planning and execution phases become apparent when a proof attempt fails Automated Mathematical Induction Hantao Zhang, 2014-01-15

Automated Mathematical Induction Adel Bouhoula, Emmanuel Kounalis, Michaël Rusinowitch, 1992 Abstract Proofs by induction are important in many computer science and artificial intelligence applications in particular in program verification and specification systems We present a new method to prove and disprove automatically inductive properties Given a set of axioms a well suited induction scheme is constructed automatically We call such an induction scheme a test set Then for proving a property we just instantiate it with terms from the test set and apply pure algebraic simplification to the result This method needs no completion and explicit induction However it retains their positive features namely the completeness of the former and the robustness of the latter It has been implemented in the theorem prover SPIKE Automated Mathematical Induction with Test Sets A. Bouhoula, E. Kounalis, M. Rusinowitch, 1993 Handbook of Mathematical Induction David S.

Gunderson, 2014-01-09 Handbook of Mathematical Induction Theory and Applications shows how to find and write proofs via mathematical induction This comprehensive book covers the theory the structure of the written proof all standard exercises and hundreds of application examples from nearly every area of mathematics In the first part of the book the author discusses
