Rapid Prototyping Patri K. Venuvinod,Weiyin Ma,2013-04-17 Since the dawn of civilization mankind has been engaged in the conception and manufacture of discrete products to serve the functional needs of local customers and the tools technology needed by other craftsmen In fact much of the progress in civilization can be attributed to progress in discrete product manufacture The functionality of a discrete object depends on two entities form and material composition For instance the aesthetic appearance of a sculpture depends upon its form whereas its durability depends upon the material composition An ideal manufacturing process is one that is able to automatically generate any form freeform in any material However unfortunately most traditional manufacturing processes are severely constrained on all these counts There are three basic ways of creating form conservative subtractive and additive In the first approach we take a material and apply the needed forces to deform it to the required shape without either adding or removing material i e we conserve material Many industrial processes such as forging casting sheet metal forming and extrusion emulate this approach A problem with many of these approaches is that they focus on form generation without explicitly providing any means for controlling material composition In fact even form is not created directly They merely duplicate the external form embedded in external tooling such as dies and molds and the internal form embedded in cores etc Till recently we have had to resort to the subtractive approach to create the form of the tooling

Computing with Words in Information/Intelligent Systems 1 Lotfi A. Zadeh, 2013-03-09 These two volumes consisting of Foundations and Applications provide the current status of theoretical and empirical developments in computing with words In philosophy the twentieth century is said to be the century of language This is mainly due to Wittgenstein who said The meaning of a word is its use in the language game The concept game is a concept with blurred edges In the first phrase the language game implies the everyday human activity with language and in the latter game simply implies an ordinary word Thus Wittgenstein precisely stated that a word is fuzzy in real life Unfortunately this idea about a word was not accepted in the conventional science We had to wait for Zadeh's fuzzy sets theory Remembering Wittgenstein's statement we should consider on the one hand the concept of computing with words from a philosophical point of view It deeply relates to the everyday use of a word in which the meaning of a word is fuzzy in its nature
