

The 1997 IEEE MTT-S International Microwave Symposium/Microwave Week: "High Frequencies in High Places"

Claude M. Weil, Senior Member, IEEE, Roger B. Marks, Senior Member, IEEE, and Motohisa Kanda, Fellow, IEEE

I. INTRODUCTION

THE 41st annual IEEE MTT-Society International Microwave Symposium (IMS), the primary event of the 1997 "Microwave Week," took place in Denver, Colorado, on June 8–13, 1997. The historic return of this event to Colorado occurred after a 24-year hiatus. It had been held twice before in Colorado; in 1962 at the laboratories of the then National Bureau of Standards in Boulder [1] and again in 1973 on the campus of the University of Colorado at Boulder [2]. Many extraordinary changes have taken place in the MTT Symposium during the intervening years, with details shown in Table I, which demonstrates well the dramatic growth of this conference. Where once the IMS could be adequately accommodated in a small college town such as Boulder, this was no longer true by the 1980's and 1990's. The very large exhibition, which has become a major and very important adjunct to the conference, now dictates that the IMS can only be held in medium-to-large-sized cities having major convention center facilities. The completion of the new Colorado Convention Center in Denver in the early 1990's finally made it possible to bring the IMS back to Colorado in 1997.

Today's IMS is only one component of what has now come to be known as "Microwave Week," including two other conferences that were formerly sponsored by or affiliated with the MTT-Society: the Radio Frequency Integrated Circuits Symposium (RFICS, formerly the MMW/MC Conference) and the Automatic RF Techniques Group (ARFTG) Conference. These take place at the beginning and end of Microwave Week, respectively. There exists considerable overlap in the registration for these three conferences. Another major component is the Exhibition, organized by Horizon House Publications, and its associated Microwave Application and Product Seminars. The social events have always been a traditional part of Microwave Week and include the IMS Awards Banquet, the RFICS Reception, the Microwave Journal-MTT-S Reception, and the Industry-hosted Cocktail Reception which precedes the Banquet. Lastly, a comprehensive Guest Program is always organized for accompanying spouses, including a hospitality suite and various tours/outings.

II. REGISTRATION STATISTICS

The registration statistics are shown in Table II.
