Designing Rules for Demand-driven Rural Investment Funds Thomas B. Wiens, Maurizio Guadagni, 1998-01-01 The demand driven rural investment fund DRIF is a new mechanism for decentralizing decisionmaking authority and financial resources to local governments and communities to use for investments of their choice To counteract the local government s weak capacity to choose and implement projects well central governments have often constrained the choices of communities by limiting the types of projects eligible for financing and requiring specific procedures for procurement and disbursement This study explores the extent to which well designed DRIF rules and incentive structures can substitute for central control It looks at the different and often conflicting motivations of donors central governments and communities and explores how rules can be devised to allow actors to achieve their objectives

Development of Rural Financial Markets to Sub-Saharan Africa Sabapathy Thillairajah, 1994 World Bank Environment Paper 6 Here is a holistic approach to analyzing the environmental impact of various power systems Unlike standard impact studies that begin at the project level this method calls for environmental assessments that start at the planning stage of a national framework for energy policymaking The framework would take into account the energy needs of Sri Lanka s total economy It also would make it easier to incorporate environmental goals into power sector decisionmaking at the critical investment stage Sri Lanka s development options for the power sector are reviewed in detail Topics include alternative ways to assess the economic value of a power plant s impact on biodiversity human health and air and water pollution The study also assesses which energy planning options work best and recommends ways in which the Ceylon Electricity Board can improve its environmental policies

Developing Effective Employment Services David Fretwell, Susan Goldberg, 1993-01-01 Employment services promote the efficient allocation of labor by among other things promoting labor mobility and improving productivity This paper assesses the cost effectiveness of services designed to expedite the exchange of labor between job seekers and employers The authors find that the benefits of employment services are not uniform Benefits may be reduced in small countries with a large informal sector or when the economy is stagnant and the demand for labor is depressed even though the need for the services may be greater under such conditions The authors advocate a balance between public and private sector delivery of employment services They favor opening the private market for what they term support services which increase productivity and include income support and retraining Such support services are distinct from what the authors call core services provision of which they believe is properly left to the public sector Core services to assist job seekers include job placement services relocation assistance counseling and skills assessment The authors find that core services are cost effective and that public sector providers can ensure that such services are delivered to unemployed low skilled or semiskilled workers whose needs may not be met by the private sector The paper reviews the justification for and development of employment services over time and compares various approaches to the provision of such services It reviews the various types of employment services and examines the differences between public and private sector delivery
