Music and Humanism R. A. Sharpe, 2000 The metaphor of music as a language has exerted a deep influence on the way we think about music and the way we hear it we conceive of music as expressive and as something to be understood These two ideas underpin the thought that it is a humanist art Sharpe suggests that Western music may have entered a new period in which the language analogy and the humanist conception are becoming less and less appropriate

BOOK JACKET The Oxford Handbook of Western Music and Philosophy Tomás McAuley, Nanette Nielsen, Jerrold Levinson, Ariana Phillips-Hutton, 2020-12-04 Whether regarded as a perplexing object a morally captivating force an ineffable entity beyond language or an inescapably embodied human practice music has captured philosophically inclined minds since time immemorial In turn musicians of all stripes have called on philosophy as a source of inspiration and encouragement and scholars of music through the ages have turned to philosophy for insight into music and into the worlds that sustain it In this Handbook contributors build on this legacy to conceptualize the rich interactions of Western music and philosophy as a series of meeting points between two vital spheres of human activity They draw together key debates at the intersection of music studies and philosophy offering a field defining overview while also forging new paths Chapters cover a wide range of musics and philosophies including concert popular jazz and electronic musics and both analytic and continental philosophy

Aesthetics of Music Carl Dahlhaus, 1982-02-25 An account of developments in the aesthetics of music from the mid eighteenth century onwards

A History of Western Musical Aesthetics Edward A. Lippman, 1994-01-01 Among the fine arts music has always held a paramount position Musical training is a more potent instrument than any other because rhythm and harmony find their way into the inward places of the soul wrote Plato From the music of the spheres of Pythagoras to the Future Music of Wagner from churches courts cathedrals and concert halls to amateur recitals military marches and electronic records music has commanded the perpetual attention of every civilization in history This book follows through the centuries the debates about the place and function of music the perceived role of music as a good or bad influence on the development of character as a magical art or a domestic entertainment and as a gateway to transcendental truths Edward Lippman describes the beginnings of musical tradition in the myths and philosophies of antiquity He shows how music theory began to take on new dimensions and intensity in the seventeenth century how musical aesthetics was specifically defined and elaborated in the eighteenth century and how by the nineteenth century music became the standard by which other arts were judged The twentieth century added problems pressure and theories as music continued to diversify and as cultures viewed each other with more respect

Philosophy of Music R. A. Sharpe, 2004 In a lively and engaging introduction to the aesthetics of music and the issues that illuminate musical listening understanding and practice R A Sharpe guides the reader through three key questions What is the work of music Can music have meaning Can music have value He anchors his discussion to examples from Western classical music and jazz and places it in the context of the historical background and philosophical thinking on music from the Ancient Greeks to Eduard Hanslick and Edmund Gurney Accounts of the philosophy of music often present it as a branch of metaphysics raising questions about sounds tones and musical movement Sharpe's non technical treatment is problem orientated and the questions he raises are about the value of music the individuality of our assessments and the way we prize music for its power to move us He argues that when it comes to music philosophical analysis has its limitations and it is no surprise that there are contradictions in the aesthetics of music or that our judgements about its value are not internally consistent
