American Babel Literatures Of The Unit:

Design in Puritan American Literature William J. Scheick, 2021-12-14 Puritan American writers faced a dilemma they had an obligation to use language as a celebration of divine artistry but they could not allow their writing to become an iconic graven image of authorial self idolatry In this study William Scheick explores one way in which William Bradford Nathaniel Ward Anne Bradstreet Uriah Oakes Edward Taylor and Jonathan Edwards mediated these conflicting imperatives They did so he argues by creating moments in their works when they and their audience could hesitate and contemplate the central paradox of language its capacity to intimate both concealed authorial pride and latent deific design These ambiguous occasions served Puritan writers as places where the threat of divine wrath and the promise of divine mercy intersected in unresolved tension By the nineteenth century the heritage of this Christlike mingling of temporal connotation and eternal denotation had mutated A peculiar late eighteenth century narrative by Nathan Fiske and a short story by Edward Bellamy both suggest that the binary nature of language exploited by their Puritan ancestors was still a vital authorial concern but neither of these writers affirms the presence of an eternal denotative signification hidden within the conflicting historical contexts of their apparently allegorical language For them appreciation of the mystery of a divine revelation possibly concealed in words yielded to puzzlement over language itself specifically over the inadequacy of language to signify more than its own instability of design This book is a tightly focused study of an important aspect of Puritan American writers use of language by one of the leading scholars in the field of early American literature

Occupying Space in American Literature and Culture Ana Manzanás, Jesús Benito Sánchez, 2014-04-24 Occupying Space in American Literature and Culture inscribes itself within the spatial turn that permeates the ways we look at literary and cultural productions The volume seeks to clarify the connections between race space class and identity as it concentrates on different occupations and disoccupations enclosures and boundaries Space is scaled up and down from the body the ground zero of spatiality to the texturology of Manhattan from the striated place of the office in Melville s Bartleby the Scrivener on Wall Street to the striated spaces of internment camps and reservations from the lowest of the low the human clutter that lined the streets of Albany NY during the Depression to the new Towers of Babel that punctuate the contemporary architecture of transparencies As it strings together these spatial narratives the volume reveals how beyond the boundaries that characterize each space every location has loose ends that are impossible to contain Hemispheric American Studies Caroline F. Levander, Robert S. Levine, 2007-10-04 This landmark collection brings together a range of exciting new comparative work in the burgeoning field of hemispheric studies Scholars working in the fields of Latin American studies Asian American studies American studies American literature African Diaspora studies and comparative literature address the urgent question of how scholars might reframe disciplinary boundaries within the broad area of what is generally called American studies The essays take as their starting points such questions as What happens to American literary political historical and cultural studies if we recognize the interdependency of nation state developments throughout all the Americas What happens if we recognize the nation as historically evolving and contingent rather than already formed Finally what happens if the fixed borders of a nation are recognized not only as historically produced political constructs but also as component parts of a deeper more multilayered series of national and indigenous histories With essays that examine stamps cartoons novels film art music travel documents and governmental publications Hemispheric American Studies seeks to excavate the complex cultural history of texts and discourses across the ever changing and stratified geopolitical and cultural fields that collectively comprise the American hemisphere This collection promises to chart new directions in American literary and cultural studies Between Two Fires Justin Quinn, 2015-09-10 Between Two Fires is about the transnational movement of poetry during the Cold War Beginning in the 1950s it examines transnational engagements across the Iron Curtain reassessing US poetry through a consideration of overlooked radical poets of the mid century and then asking what such transactions tell us about the way that anglophone culture absorbed new models during this period The Cold War synchronized culture across the globe leading to similar themes forms and critical maneuvers Poetry a discourse routinely figured as distant from political concerns was profoundly affected by the ideological pressures of the period But beyond such mirroring there were many movements across the Iron Curtain despite the barriers of cultural and language difference state security surveillance spies traitors and translators Justin Quinn shows how such factors are integral to transnational cultural movements during this period and have influenced even postwar anglophone poetry that is thematically distant from the Cold War For the purposes of the study Czech poetry its writers its translators its critics stands on the other side of the Iron Curtain as receptor and which has been overlooked part creator of the anglophone tradition in this period By stepping outside the frameworks by which anglophone poetry is usually considered we see figures such as Robert Lowell Derek Walcott Allen Ginsberg and Seamus Heaney in a new way with respect to the ideological mechanisms that were at work behind the promotion of the aesthetic as a category independent of political considerations foremost among these postcolonial theory Shades of the Planet Wai Chee Dimock, Lawrence Buell, 2018-06-05 In a globalizing age studying American literature in isolation from the rest of the world seems less and less justified But is the conceptual box of the nation dispensable And what would American literature look like without it Leading scholars take up this debate in Shades of the Planet beginning not with the United States as center but with the world as circumference This reversed frame yields a surprising landscape alive with traces of West Africa Eastern Europe Iran Iraq India China Mexico and Australia The Broadway musical Oklahoma has aboriginal antecedents Black English houses an African syntax American slavery consorts with the Holocaust Philip Roth keeps company with Milan Kundera the crime novel moves south of the border and R P Blackmur lectures in Japan A national literature becomes haunted by the world when that literature is seen extending to the Pacific opening up to Islam and accompanying African American authors as they travel Highlighting American literature as a fold in a planet wide fabric this pioneering volume transforms the field redrawing its institutional as well as geographical map The contributors are Rachel Adams Jonathan Arac Homi K Bhabha Lawrence Buell Wai Chee Dimock Susan Stanford Friedman Paul Giles David Palumbo Liu Ross Posnock Joseph Roach and Eric J Sundquist

The American Catalog ,1881 Self-Translation and Power Olga Castro,Sergi Mainer,Svetlana Page,2017-08-07 This book investigates the political social cultural and economic implications of self translation in multilingual spaces in Europe Engaging with the power turn in translation studies contexts it offers innovative perspectives on the role of self translators as cultural and ideological mediators The authors explore the unequal power relations and centre periphery dichotomies of Europe s minorised languages literatures and cultures They recognise that the self translator s double affiliation as author and translator places them in a privileged position to challenge power to negotiate the experiences of the subaltern and colonised and to scrutinise conflicting minorised vs hegemonic cultural identities Three main themes are explored in relation to self translation hegemony and resistance self minorisation and self censorship and collaboration hybridisation and invisibility This edited collection will appeal to scholars and students working on translation transnational and postcolonial studies and multilingual and multicultural identities
