Applying Research And Knowledge:

Applying Research Evidence in Social Work Practice Martin Webber, 2017-09-16 This key textbook explores how good social work practice draws upon relevant and current research to ensure that interventions are as effective as possible. Social workers are increasingly required to demonstrate their knowledge of the research and evidence that underpin the daily decisions they make and actions they take and it is therefore vital that they are not only up to date with the latest research but that they have the tools and understanding to successfully apply this to their practice. Written by leading experts in the field, this text book provides a step by step guide to implementing research in to every day social work practice. This is essential reading for any one taking a research module on Social Work programmes at undergraduate and postgraduate level or practitioners wishing to advance their own practise and deliver the best possible service they can. Applied Social Science Research in a Regional Knowledge System Hans Christian Garmann Johnsen, Elisabet S. Hauge, May-Linda Magnussen, Richard Ennals, 2016-10-04 With the changing economic environment the Editors question what impact this will have on applied researchers around the world. What can we learn from their cases? What can one region learn from another? With increased pressure on researchers to achieve academic reputation how does this fit with the demands for greater practical applicability? For them applied research is seen as a vital part of the infrastructure for economic and social development in the region and beyond. Universities as Centres of Research and Knowledge Creation: An Endangered Species?, 2008-01-01 Today unprecedented emphasis is being placed on research as key motor for advancing the knowledge society and its offspring the knowledge economy. Consequently research on the state of research has moved high on the priority agendas for governments, for their specialized agencies and bodies devoted to this area and for higher education institutions. Against this background the central premise of the 2006 Global Colloquium of the UNESCO Forum for Higher Education Research and Knowledge Universities as Centres of Research and Knowledge Creation An Endangered Species was that research is a key ingredient in the institutional identity of universities and an indispensable prerequisite for a successful programme of teaching and public service. Based on contributions to this Colloquium authors from twenty countries from all regions of the world analyse aspects related to the research function of universities. This book primarily addresses the variety and gaps in higher education across the globe concentrating on the challenges to transitional and developing countries. It addresses the related issues of research capacity, research productivity and research relevance and utility. Research capacity appears as a necessary but not sufficient condition for research productivity and research productivity must be assessed in terms of utility and relevance. This volume provides a global range of insights both for policy makers and for higher education and research communities. Higher Education, Research, and Knowledge in the Asia-Pacific Region V. Meek, C. Suwanwela, 2007-01-08 One of the first books to focus on different national perspectives of knowledge production and research in higher education in the Asia Pacific region it compares contrasts and critically analyzes how policy in Asia Pacific countries is furthering a supportive or non supportive environment for the promotion of research within higher education Knowledge Nico Stehr,Reiner Grundmann,2005 The increasing investment in scientific knowledge in its production distribution and reproduction is acquiring greater social significance Everything that is regarded as knowledge in society has become a legitimate subject matter for academic investigations from various disciplines and for practitioners Research Council Support for Knowledge Transfer Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee,2006 Knowledge transfer is an essential component of innovation It is defined as about transferring good ideas research results and skills between universities other research organisations business and the wider community to enable innovative new products and services to be developed This inquiry focused on the effectiveness of the research councils knowledge transfer activities with particular respect to promotion of collaborative working between researchers and partners in industry including in the creative industries and in Small and Medium size Enterprises SMEs stakeholder engagement and communication results and performance management and co ordination between the councils and the role of Research Councils UK RCUK The Committee found weaknesses in strategies for promotion of knowledge transfer Some Councils focus too narrowly on technology transfer with little attention paid to the wider issues such as policy development The councils also focus their attention on informing stakeholders rather than consulting on stakeholder needs In addition there is a particular need for the research councils to enhance communication and engagement with the Regional Development Agencies and SMEs There is little evidence of research council co ordination or sharing of best practice in knowledge transfer Also despite their clear remit to co ordinate and harmonise there appears to have been no added value from RCUK in this area Whilst some councils have a simple funding structure for knowledge transfer in other cases a high level of confusion has been created since there are so many schemes in operation Since the councils conduct little internal impact analysis of their knowledge transfer schemes it is difficult to see how they can effectively allocate funding to different knowledge transfer activities Practical Mapping for Applied Research and Program Evaluation Bernadette Wright,Steven E. Wallis,2019-05-31 Practical Mapping for Applied Research and Program Evaluation is the first book to bring the mapping methodology to social research and program evaluation Bernadette Wright and Steven E Wallis guide readers through all phases of the research process learning from stakeholder experience reviewing existing knowledge in the field conducting new data collection such as interviews collaborating with other researchers and facilitating the use of knowledge for communication collaboration and action With plenty of illustrations and navigational aids such as travel tips the book is an accessible guide for busy students researchers and managers of all levels of experience Computational Intelligent Systems for Applied Research Da Ruan,P.
