Geballe, Heino Falcke, 2008-09-26 Our knowledge of the environment of the nucleus of our galaxy has been greatly enhanced by more extensive and sensitive observations at radio and infrared wavelengths the advent of high resolution x ray imaging and spectroscopy and considerable theoretical activity to understand the nucleus and its components and their activity The Galactic Center Workshop 2002 was organized to review recent research on the galactic center including the latest state of the art observations and important theoretical developments The workshop covered phenomena on scales ranging from the central several hundred parsecs to the central parsec and within Each topic was approached from both multi wavelength observational and theoretical perspectives

Neutrinos Arnold S. Lavro, 2002 Neutrinos are one of the most abundant particles in the universe Because they have very little interaction with matter however they are incredibly difficult to detect Neutrinos are similar to the more familiar electron with one crucial difference neutrinos do not carry electric charge Because neutrinos are electrically neutral they are not affected by the electromagnetic forces which act on electrons Three types of neutrinos are known Each type or flavour of neutrino is related to a charged particle which gives the corresponding neutrino its name Hence the electron neutrino is associated with the electron and two other neutrinos are associated with heavier versions of the electron called the muon and the tau The book presents citations from the literature for the last three years from the journal literature and the existent book literature Access is provided by subject author and title indexes
