

EXHIBIT 3.1 Post-Acquisition Consolidation Entries—Equity Method

- [C] Eliminates all changes in the parent's books caused by investment bookkeeping during the year. When the parent uses the equity method to account for the pre-consolidation Equity Investment account, it reverses all entries to the Equity Investment account during the consolidation period, leaving only the beginning balance.
- [E] Eliminates the portion of the investment account related to the book value of the subsidiary's Stockholders' Equity at the beginning of the accounting period. (After this entry, the investment account should equal the beginning of period unamortized AAP.)
- [A] Assigns the remaining Equity Investment account (i.e., unamortized beginning of period AAP) to appropriate asset and liability accounts as of the beginning of the accounting period.
- [D] Depreciates/amortizes AAP so that the income statement includes the activity and the balance sheet accounts include ending AAP assigned to the appropriate accounts.
- [I] Eliminates intercompany activity (e.g., sales between parent and subsidiary) and/or intercompany balances (e.g., account payable and account receivable between parent and subsidiary). (This will be covered in Chapter 4.)
