Awkward Age In Womens Popular Fiction 1850 1900:

The Awkward Age in Women's Popular Fiction, 1850 - 1900 Sarah Bilston, 2006 The Awkward Age in Women's Popular Fiction, 1850-1900 Sarah Bilston, 2004-07-22 This book demonstrates that the awkward age formed a fault line in Victorian female experience an unusual phase in which restlessness self interest and rebellion were possible Tracing evolving treatments of female adolescence though a host of long forgotten women s fictions the book reveals that representations of the girl in popular women s literature importantly anticipated depictions of the feminist in the fin de si cle New Woman writing conservative portrayals of girls hopes dreams and subsequent frustrations helped clear a literary and cultural space for the New Woman s awakening to disaffected consciousness The book thus both historicises the evolution and mythic appeal of the female adolescent and works to receive suggestive exchanges between apparently diverse female literary traditions The Awkward Age in Women's Popular Fiction, 1850-1900 Sarah Bilston, 2004 Mobility and Modernity in Women's Novels, 1850s-1930s W. Parkins, 2008-11-27 Analyzing novels by women writers from the 1850s to the 1930s this book argues that representations of mobility offer a fruitful way to explore the location of women within modernity and specifically the opportunities for or limitations on women s agency in this period considering the mobility of the female subject in the city and beyond Juvenile Literature and British Society, 1850-1950 Charles Ferrall, Anna Jackson, 2012-05-10 In this study Charles Ferrall and Anna Jackson argue that the Victorians created a concept of adolescence that lasted into the twentieth century and yet is strikingly at odds with post Second World War notions of adolescence as a period of storm and stress In the enormously popular juvenile literature of the period primarily boys and girls own adventure and school stories adolescence is acknowledged as a time of sexual awareness and yet also of a romantic idealism that is lost with marriage a time when boys and girls acquire adult duties and responsibilities and yet have not had to assume the roles of breadwinner or household manager The book reveals a concept of adolescence as significant as the Romantic cult of childhood that preceded it which will be of interest to scholars of both children s literature and Victorian culture Constructions of the Irish Child in the Independence Period, 1910-1940 Ciara Boylan, Ciara Gallagher, 2018-09-21 This volume explores how Irish children were constructed by various actors including the state youth organisations authors and publishers in the period before and after Ireland gained independence in 1922 It examines the broad variety of ways in which the Irish child was constructed through social and cultural activities like education sport youth organizations and cultural production such as literature toys and clothes covering themes ranging from gender religion and social class to the broader politics of identity citizenship and nation building A variety of ideals and ideologies some of them conflicting competed to inform how children were constructed by the adults who looked on them as embodying the future of the nation Contributors ask fundamental questions about how children were constructed as part of the idealisation of the state before its formation and the consolidation of the state after its foundation Adolescence in Modern Irish History Catherine

Cox, Susannah Riordan, 2015-09-15 This edited collection is the first to address the topic of adolescence in Irish history. It brings together established and emerging scholars to examine the experience of Irish young adults from the affective revolution of the early nineteenth century to the emergence of the teenager in the 1960s. Constructing Girlhood through the Periodical Press, 1850-1915 Kristine Moruzi, 2016-05-23 Focusing on six popular British girls periodicals, Kristine Moruzi explores the debate about the shifting nature of Victorian girlhood between 1850 and 1915. During an era of significant political, social, and economic change, girls periodicals demonstrate the difficulties of fashioning a coherent, consistent model of girlhood. The mixed genre format of these magazines, Moruzi suggests, allowed inconsistencies and tensions between competing feminine ideals to exist within the same publication. Adopting a case study approach, Moruzi shows that the Monthly Packet, the Girl of the Period, Miscellany, the Girl's Own Paper, Atalanta, the Young Woman, and the Girl's Realm each attempted to define and refine a unique type of girl, particularly the religious girl, the Girl of the Period, the healthy girl, the educated girl, the marrying girl, and the modern girl. These periodicals reflected the challenges of embracing the changing conditions of girls' lives while also attempting to maintain traditional feminine ideals of purity and morality. By analyzing the competing discourses within girls periodicals, Moruzi's book demonstrates how they were able to frame feminine behaviour in ways that both reinforced and redefined the changing role of girls in nineteenth-century society while also allowing girl readers the opportunity to respond to these definitions. The New Woman: Student in Fact and Fiction, 1880-1914 Laura Rotunno, 2025-09-30 This book explores the representation of the first generations of women who studied at Oxford and Cambridge in popular fiction of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. Familiarly termed Girton Girls, these women were depicted as intent on overthrowing the ancient universities and, by extension, English society. This study argues that the powerful and influential vision of the Oxbridge woman was both exploited and expanded in novels of the time. It shows that this fiction offers not only an informed critical view of this simultaneously anxiety-ridden and intermittently hopeful period of English life between 1880 and 1914 but also reveals popular fiction's underexplored contribution to the move towards Modernist themes and literary techniques. The book posits that the Girton Girl was not simply a bit part in the sub-genre of the university novel or even within the confines of the New Woman fiction but rather her character was rich and malleable enough to animate a variety of plots that respond to readers' burgeoning demands for the women who would inhabit their fiction. Adolescent Girlhood and Literary Culture at the Fin de Siècle Beth Rodgers, 2016-10-06 This book examines the construction of adolescent girlhood across a range of genres in the closing decades of the nineteenth century. It argues that there was a preoccupation with defining, characterising, and naming adolescent girlhood at the fin de siècle. These daughters of today, juvenile spinsters, and modern girls, as the press variously termed them, occupying a borderland between childhood and womanhood, were seen to be inextricably connected to late nineteenth-century modernity; they were the products of changes taking place in education and employment and of the challenge to traditional conceptions of femininity presented by the Woman Question The author argues that the shifting nature of the modern adolescent girl made her a malleable cultural figure and a meeting point for many of the prevalent debates associated with fin de siècle society By juxtaposing diverse material from children's books and girls magazines to New Woman novels and psychological studies the author contextualises adolescent girlhood as a distinct but complex cultural category at the end of the nineteenth century
