

China's Crushing Debt

Nearly everyone agrees that China has a serious debt problem, some would even call it a crisis, one which the State Council addressed in a highly anticipated report released last summer. The National Audit office said local government debt, including contingent liabilities and guarantees, had risen by nearly 70% to RMB 17.9 trillion as of June 2013. The report also said that shadow banks accounted for at least 13% of all local government borrowing. To put things in perspective, Shanghai-based Tiger Economics market research firm ranked the top 10 most indebted provincial capitals. Below is a snapshot of those cities, the size of their debt problem, and what investments got them in the hole.

Public-Private Partnerships for Sustainable Development Axel Marx, 2019-04-18. Voluntary sustainability standards (VSS) and other private governance instruments (e.g. Fair Trade, Forest Stewardship Council, Fair Wear Foundation, GLOBALGAP) are increasingly regulating global production processes and economic activities. VSS verify the compliance of products or production processes with sustainability standards. The importance of voluntary sustainability standards is now widely recognized. After being operational for more than two decades, they have established themselves as private governance instruments. This recognition is also exemplified by their integration in public regulatory approaches. Governments and international organizations are partnering with voluntary sustainability standards to pursue sustainable development policies. We witness the integration of VSS in the regulatory approaches of local and national governments in countries around the world, the integration of VSS in trade policies, the emergence of public-private initiatives to govern global supply chains and the inclusion of private initiatives in experimentalist governance regimes. This Special Issue seeks to bring together research on the interface between private and public governance. We welcome contributions which analyze specific case studies on the emergence and development of these private-public interactions, the design of public-private governance, the effectiveness of these governance arrangements and critical perspectives on the possibilities and limitations of such public-private forms of governance. We welcome multi-disciplinary perspectives including contributions from economics, political science, law, sociology, geography and anthropology. Papers selected for this Special Issue are subject to a peer review procedure with the aim of rapid and wide dissemination of research results, developments and applications.

Local Public Financial Management Anwar Shah, 2007. Transparent and prudent local financial management has come to be recognized as critical to the integrity of the local public sector and to gaining and retaining trust of local residents. Such integrity and trust is sometimes lacking in some local governments in developing countries, especially in the Africa region. This volume attempts to provide practical guidance to local governments interested in establishing sound financial management systems. Leading international experts have contributed to all relevant aspects of local public financial management: cash management, internal controls, accounts, audits and debt management.
